

Chinada Holdings, Inc. Receives Investment from DN Partners II, L.P.

August 2009

Chinada Holdings, Inc., a leading distributor of heavy-duty truck components to the North American aftermarket, announced that it has received an investment from DN Partners II, L.P. (“DN Partners”). Through a recapitalization transaction, DN Partners acquired a significant interest in the Company in partnership with its entrepreneurial management team.

“Our partnership with DN Partners gives Chinada access to additional capital and resources that are necessary at this stage for growth and expansion of the company,” said Doug Kelvin, President and CEO of Chinada.

The relationship between DN Partners and Chinada’s management was cultivated over several years. “We had been talking to DN Partners for some time. When met with the need for additional capital, DN was the first company we sought out,” stated Kelvin. “We are excited with the outcome and look forward to working with DN Partners on continuing the company’s expansion.”

DN Partners is a Chicago-based private equity firm that manages committed capital funds on behalf of institutional and high net worth investors. With over 25 years of experience in investing in lower middle-market companies generally based in the Midwest, DN specializes in partnering with management teams to facilitate corporate spin-offs, family succession transactions, recapitalizations, buy and build strategies, and management buyouts.
